“Gym Junkie” was co-directed by Sam Osborn Rassaby (SASSABY) & Bryce Padovan (WE MADE THAT) and features local actor Liam Seymour as Johnny the Gym Junkie and Headphones Jones’ frontwoman, Mel Taylor as our hellbent heroine.

Primarily shot at a factory in Williamstown, the video pays tribute to 80s horror films such as The Toxic Avenger and The Evil Dead and features laughs, scares and an aerobics-dance routine inspired by a 1988 Aerobics Championships Opening Routine. The video culminates in a dramatic standoff where Johnny has to choose between his life and his gym obsession. Headphones Jones band members play all the supporting characters and were actively involved in the production; sourcing costumes, creating props and set pieces and assisting with the lighting department on set. The band sourced and recreated 80s props including borrowing an 89' Honda Prelude and finding real Australian WorkSafe posters to put up.

Headphones Jones are hosting a Horror Funk Experience at the Evelyn to premiere and celebrate the clip on the 16th of August, 2019, 8.00PM Doors. Supports from Beautiful Beasts and ChibCha.
